DETAILED ACTION

This office action is in response to the preliminary amendment filed 7/11/2006, in which claims 1-29 were presented for examination.

Election/Restrictions

This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species:

Species 1: embodiment of page 7, line 3- page 9, line 25, employing a third placement of elements and determining the corrected instantaneous desired motion by regarding the difference in the placement of elements of the model between the third placement and the first placement as acceleration is closer to a predetermined value and then a moment component calculated by regarding the difference in placement of the elements of the model between the second and first placements as acceleration.

Species 2: embodiment of page 10, line 13 – page 13, line 11, employing a second placement of elements and determining the moment component due to resultant force of the inertial forces of the elements are calculated by regarding the difference in placement of the elements of the model between the second placement and the first placement as acceleration becomes substantially a predetermined value.

Species 3: embodiment of page 25, line 3 - page 27, line 12, employing a plurality of legs wherein the position of the connecting position between the body and each leg is changed to substantially the opposite direction from the direction into which the joint of the middle position of the leg protrudes/projects.

Species 4: embodiment of figure 24 and page 162, line 19-page 163, line 23, employing the bending angles of joints for determining the correction amounts of body position/posture.

Species 5: embodiment of page 164, lines 13-27, employing the pseudo positional error or relative positions of a segment for determining the correction amounts of body position/posture.

The species are independent or distinct because claims to the different species recite the mutually exclusive characteristics of such species. In addition, these species are not obvious variants of each other based on the current record.

Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, no claims are generic.

There is an examination and search burden for these patentably distinct species due to their mutually exclusive characteristics. The species require a different field of search (e.g., searching different classes/subclasses or electronic resources, or employing different search queries); and/or the prior art applicable to one species would not likely be applicable to another species; and/or the species are likely to raise different non-prior art issues under 35 U.S.C. 101 and/or 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species to be examined even though the requirement may be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

The election of the species may be made with or without traverse. To preserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the election of species requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse. Traversal must be presented at the time of election in order to be considered timely. Failure to timely traverse the requirement will result in the loss of right to petition under 37 CFR 1.144. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which of these claims are readable on the elected species.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the species unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other species.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which depend from or otherwise require all the limitations of an allowable generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141.
